NOTES

Lockwood Kidnapped Again in Argentina

On 31 July Charles Agnew Lockwood, the British director of Roberts and Company, an Argentine financial firm which represents Morgan Guarantee International of London and Barring Brothers and Company of London, was kidnapped for the second time in as many years. The abduction took place at a railroad crossing not far from Lockwood's home. Twenty persons, some disguised as railroad workers, stopped Lockwood's car at gunpoint while Lockwood was on his way to work. In the fire fight which followed, two of Lockwood's bodyguards and his chauffeur were wounded. Lockwood reportedly was not injured. The kidnappers left behind Lockwood's daughters, who were also unharmed.

In the earlier kidnapping the terrorists, who were believed to be members of the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP), held Lockwood from 6 July until 29 July 1973 and released him for a ransom which may have run as high as $2 million. (See the 13 June, 26 June and 1 August 1973 issues.) The identity of Lockwood's current abductors is not yet known. (UNCLASSIFIED)

NOTES

Kidnapping of Japanese National by Philippine Moslem Rebels

Moslem rebels have kidnapped a Japanese woman on the Philippine island of Mindanao and have demanded that the Philippine government pay a ransom of $28,000 for her release, according to a 26 August Reuters news dispatch. The woman, who was visiting the southern Philippine island on holiday, is a stewardess with the West German airline Lufthansa. The Philippine Secretary of Information informed the press that the ransom note was signed by the Moro National Liberation Front. The MNLF gave the government 24 hours to meet the ransom demand. delivered to the center through the regular mail service on 20 August, with the return address of a friend. Upon opening the package, a secretary found a glass bottle and suspicious wiring inside a smaller wooden box. She called the person named in the return address, who denied sending a package. Police were then notified, and the bomb was removed from the center in a special police vehicle. While the vehicle was in transit the box burst into flames, but the police quickly extinguished the fire. West Berlin police currently have no indication who was responsible for the incident.
